Title: The Sack of "the Lurgan." (A Study.) By Thomas Fitzpatrick, LL.D., 1904, Belfast, 177

November 1641

Lurgan

[The extracts from the depositions are taken direct from the MSS. in T. C. D. Library.
Most (if not all) herein given are now printed for the first time.]

Captain Valentine Blacker, also speaking from hearsay, saith:

“That Edmund boy McGlasney McGennis of Clanconnell [dead] and Art Oge McGlasney McGennis [dead] of the same, gathered the men in Clanconnell, and burnt Downe patrick, Dromore, and Lurgan, as they themselves confesst they had done, at their returne, to this informant, being then their prisoner.

“Toole McMacan (sic) and Toole McRowry McCann gathered the Irish in Clancan and Clanbrassell, and went [to] burne Lurgan, and when they returned they bragd that they had burnt it, in the informant’s hearing, who also saw them going thither, the said Toole McMacan comanding them, and marching before them. Toole McRowry McCann was lieut’.”

To this statement there is no signature, and no jurat: may be a note or abstract from an original deposition, or an outline of evidence proposed to be given.

Title: An Historical Account of the Plantation in Ulster at the Commencement of the Seventeenth Century, 1608-1620. By the Rev. George Hill, 1877, Belfast, 255-256

1655-1661

CHAPTER IX.

PYNNAR'S SURVEY.¹

CXLVI. 3,500 ACRES.

The *Lord Uchiltree*² hath 3,500 acres, called Revelin-Outra and Eightra (256). There is no more done now than was at the last Survey; the Castle is thatched, and the Lord absent. Near unto the Castle there are a great many poor Irish Houses inhabited with Brittish Families.

¹ Captain Nicholas Pynnar was ordered to be appointed to survey the plantations in counties Tyrone, Donnegal, Armagh, Cavan, Fermanagh and Londonderry 27 November 1618

² Uchiltree. — Andrew Stewart had not sold his barony and title of Ochiltree at the time of Pyimar's report. This sale was effected soon afterwards, however (see p. 286), and he appears with his new title of Baron Castlestewart throughout the printed inquisitions relating to the county of Tyrone. He died on the 30th of March, 1639, and was succeeded by his son and heir, also named Andrew. In 1628, the first Baron Castlestewart, for a sum of 200*l.*, sold to Gilbert Kennedy, gent., and John Collis, the townes or balliboies of Kilsally and Ballymagwier. Kennedy and Collis, for the same sum, disposed of these lands to Henry Boyne, on the 1st of May, 1638; and Henry Boyne's son and heir, also named Henry, for the same sum of 200*l.*, surrendered this little property on the 10th of July, 1655, to Valentine Blacker of Carrick, county of Armagh. George Blacker, the representative of Valentine, held Kilsally and Ballymagwier in 1661. He also, about the year 1658, bought two other parcels of land called Ela and Killmany, containing 200 acres, which had belonged to Lord Castlestewart, and were sold by the latter for 150*l.* in hand, and a yearly rent of 3*l.* for ever. The first purchaser from the landlord was Christopher Harrison, who sold to Thomas Dawson, the latter selling in turn to George Blacker. (Inquisitions of Ulster, Tyrone, (46) Car. I.; (14), (20), and (24) Car. II.) From this source we have no information as to the state of affairs on the Castlestewart estate; but, judging from Pynnar's report, they were gloomy enough. British settlers dwelling permanently in Irish houses, from which the owners had been expelled, was proof that these domiciles could not have been so contemptible as they are so generally represented; or, at least, that they must have been better than the settlers could have had in their own country. On the 26th of February, 1629, letters patent of denization were issued to Andrew Stewart, and a re-grant of three proportions, viz., the great proportion of Revelinowtra, in the precinct of Mountjoy, barony of Dungannon, containing 2,000 acres, with the advowson of the church of Donogherry, and the two small proportions of Revelineightra and Balliokevan, in the same barony, each containing 1,000 acres. To be held in free and common socage. The two proportions of Revelineightra and Revelinowtra to be erected into a manor, to be called the manor of Castlestewart, and the proportion of Balliokevan to be called the manor of Foreward; with all manorial rights and powers in each case. A market every Wednesday at Castlestewart, and two fairs, one to be held on the 20th of April, and the other on the 20th of October, to continue for two days; subject to the conditions of plantation, and to the terms for renewing the grants of undertakers
