10 December 1331

Glaston

326.⁷ Inquisition taken in the conventual church of Glaston by us, Ralph, by divine permission, Bishop of Bath and Wells, iij Id., Dec., A.D. abovesaid.

Peter Vason, of free condition, aged 30 years, and janitor of ⁸ the abbot and convent of the monastery of Glaston, being asked if anyone did injury or violence to the servants, clerks or familiares of the Archbishop; says that he does not know. Asked if anyone was seen to break or open the door of the chamber appointed for the Archbishop; he says, not that he knows. Asked if anything was done to the hindrance or contempt of the Archbishop's jurisdiction; he says not that he knows. He says that he heard from others that Walter Rodeney wanted to have entry into the said chamber, and entry had been denied him.

John, clerk of the meadary, of the same monastery says as the said Peter said, with this change; that he heard said that one of the esquires wishing to enter the doorkeeper closed the door too soon and so squeezed the foot of the said esquire between the door and the lintel of the same door, and forthwith the same esquire called and others came who drew him out of the said chamber; but he knows not who they were.

John Gouyz, of free condition, aged 30 years, deposes as the said Peter, with this change; he heard that the words were between Walter Rodeney and the servants of the Archbishop.

Richard de Wuteneye, servant in the refectory of the said monastery, deposes as the said Peter, with this change; that he heard it said by those who were present at the door that a youth of the esquires wished to enter the chamber and one, Master Peter by name, as he believes, drew him back by the hood outside the chamber.

Robert Friday, of free condition, aged 30 years, deposes as the said Peter. He saw no injury or violence done to any of the ministers of the Archbishop, nor did he see any other tumult at the door.

Richard Le Messenger, of free condition, aged 40 years, says that he knows nothing except by the relation of others.

William Hardyng, of free condition, aged 30 years, agrees with Richard Le Messenger.

Henry Le Ferour, of Glaston, of free condition, aged 40 years, knows nothing except by relation.

Thomas in the Coumbe, of Glaston, of free condition, aged 40 years, heard that the youth was dragged out of the door of the chamber.

⁹ William Le Bakere, of free condition, agrees with the said Thomas.

Richard de Blackere agrees with the said Thomas and William.

Robert de Marnhall, of free condition, aged 30 years, says as Peter Wason, with this change. He saw the youth wishing to enter the chamber, and Walter Rodeney drawing him back exclaimed “tu non facis curialiter, immo emendabuntur ista.” And immediately the Archbishop’s marshall appeared and promised that all things should be reformed.

Robert atte Wych, of free condition, aged 60 years, deposes as the said Peter and Thomas in the Coumbe.

Thomas Jordam¹⁰, “familiaris nostre,” aged 30 years, deposes as the said Peter. With this change; that he was present at the door and saw the said youth, his companion, pressed by the chamber door, and another man dragged him out in so much that his garment was torn.

And at length Walter de Rodeney reproved the Archbishop’s barber who was shutting the door.

Henry de Sudbury, esquire, and “familiaris noster,” agrees with Thomas Jurdan¹¹.

Nicholas de la Rode, esquire, and “familiaris noster,” says he saw nothing.

Nicholas de Kynardesey and Edmund de Kynardesey, esquires, “familiares,” also depose.

[PIETRO BIZARRI] TO ROBERT BEALE.

Yesterday was given me your very kind letter of the last of September; the last I received from you was a year and some months ago, and I am infinitely sorry that the one written to me lately has not come to my hands. I cannot tell how that has happened, but I thank you over and over again for your courtesy and friendship.

It is my evangelist Constantine who has not satisfied me in anything for the year ended in March last, and his correspondent, Giovanni Benedetto Inurea (?), a Genoese gentleman, tells me he has had no commission whatever from him. I do not know the cause of this, and am very doubtful whether I ought to go in quinta essenzia unless I see better results than I have done hitherto.

Your honour's arrangement for the future pleases me much. I cannot desire a better means than this; for I remember much good of this gentleman of Salisbury whom you name, viz. Mr. William Blacker, registrar of the chapter of that church, who is truly a good and upright man. I pray you to write to him and beg him to take charge of my affairs, that is to say to demand the two years rents from the accustomed tenant and have them sent to me from time to time (first satisfying all demands of her Majesty or otherwise) paying the money in London to my aforesaid evangelist Constantine.

And if he does not come personally to London at the appointed times as John Davis was wont to do, to give order for some trustworthy friend, that the money should be paid to him in London. This is my very humble request of your honour, praying you to pardon me the trouble I give you and to attribute it to your infinite kindness to me, and to the great confidence I have always had in you and your noble family. I pray you also to salute on my behalf the reverend gentleman at Salisbury and thank him for the kind offices which he deigns to do for love of me. — Antwerp, 22 October, new style.
